The Fate of the Assassins.

The country has heard with a sense of relief and a feeling of satisfaction that the trial of the conspirators has terminated, that sentence of death has been pronounced upon Surratt, Harold, Asher, and Payne, and that they were to be executed yesterday.

The evidence of the participation or complicity of these bloody villains in the double crimes of murder and treason has been so clear and conclusive, that the wounded honor and impatient justice of the nation has been clamorous and almost angry for the quick enforcement of the penalties of the law—for a short and terrible vengeance. We have begrudged them, "the law's delay." The patry, quibbling plans, of counsel have grated harshly on our ears, so lately pained with the wail of universal sorrow and cries of horror. It seemed to wrong the precious memory of the martyred dead, and an insult to the majesty of the Republic, to grant to such barbarians, such pitiless monsters, the forms of trial.

But, after all, to accord to even such outcasts from the mercy of men the privileges which all arraigned for crime enjoy, was perhaps the noblest tribute that could be paid to the genius of our institutions, and the most convincing demonstration of our fealty, allegiance, respect and reverence for law.

Had the assassins perished by mob violence, a million human hearts would have applauded the deed, however vengeful; but it is better their guilt should be established by judicial tribunals and their lives forfeited under the sanctions of law, thus meeting the approval of the passionless judgment of the future as well as present age. The trial, however, has accomplished something more than the conviction of four worthless men. They were already prejudged and foredoomed in popular estimation.

The military commission has also thrown a flood of light upon the most important era in our annals. It has traced the conspiracy to its roots at Richmond, and throughout all its tangled ramifications in our own and foreign countries. It has revealed the red-handed atrocity and the black-hearted villainy which have characterized the Rebellion in its inception, progress and culmination. It has shown the Confederate chiefs without scruple of conscience or touch of pity, conniving at, if not instigating crimes beyond the scope and usage of civilized warfare—crimes at which humanity shudders and turns pale. It has shown them throwing away the weapons of an open and manly fight, and seizing the torch, the poisoned cup and the dagger as the instruments, not of courageous defence, but of a mean and dastardly revenge. Above all, it has exposed the forked tongue and cloven foot of Slavery—in the warped judgments, the corrupted moral sense and the frightful passions of a people, besotted and infatuated, inspired to madness, and driven to fanaticism by its unholy influences.

The Atlantic Telegraph and Exorbitant Charges.

The charge proposed for the transmission of messages over the submarine cable is five dollars per word, and no message less than twenty words is to be taken, the address and signature being counted and charged for as part of the message. The company apologize for this heavy charge by stating that unless they charge high prices at first, the business will accumulate and delay the transmission of messages, but that the rates will be reduced as soon as possible. That possibility might not occur. At the rate at which the electricians reckon their ability to transmit messages—which is, the New York Times says, eight words per minute, the line can be made to transmit four million words a year. It takes but little reckoning to sum up what this would bring in the way of revenue. At one pound sterling a word, the directors, by their own admissions, must calculate on an income of $20,000,000. That is, they reckon on getting back about four times the amount of the principal in twelve months. A dispatch of twenty lines for the morning papers of the country, which would give us little more than the quotations of the cotton and money markets, would cost eight hundred dollars per day, and in order to protect the people from the games of speculation, the press will have to get lengthier dispatches from Europe even at the above high rates.

Competition is all that is required to bring down these exorbitant rates of the Atlantic Telegraph Company. They are not alone in the Russo-American Cable and Telegraph Company, which proposes to send messages of twenty-five words between London and New York via Baku, the Persian Gulf, &c., for forty dollars. But neither of the foregoing mentioned lines go yet in operation.

TRODDEN FLOWERS.

There are some hearts that like the trodden flower, cheer as unobscuredly true, and unobscuredly true, Spilling that sower and do not repine— Patient and sweet as a lowly trodden flower That from the passer's foot is raised, And bring back odorous breaths instead of sh-

But there are other hearts that will not feel The lonely love that haunts their eyes and ears; That wound and bruise with anger worse than steel; And out of pity's spring draw idle tears. O Nature! shall it ever be thy will All things with good to mingle, good with ill? Why should the seed be broken that will bend, And they that dry the tears in other's eyes Feel their own anguish swelling without end, Their summer darkened with the smoke of sin? Sore, Love to some fair Eden of his own Will take at last, and leave us here alone.

Love weepeth always—weepeth for the past, For words that are, for times that may be; Why should not hard ambition weep at last, Easy and hated, avowed and pride? Fate whispers, sorrow is our lot, They would be rebels, love is deathly not.

—An order has been issued from the War Department for a still further reduction of the military force of the country. By this order the commanders of all departments and armies, excepting the Department of the Gulf, Army of the Tennessee, Provisional Corps of the Army of the Potomac, the First army corps and the command in Texas, are directed to immediately reduce their force to the minimum numbers of men necessary to meet the requirements of the service, and the masters out are to be by entire organizations.

—Gen Butler has presented $5,000 to Phillips Academy, Andover, to provide a free scholarship, fifty years, for the son of a soldier—white or black—disabled in the war.

—The whiskey ration, by order of the Secretary of War, is discontinued, and the Commissary General ordered to sell all of that commodity on hand.

—Mr. Wm P. Johnson, a brother of the President of the United States, who has been residing in Texas for seven years, has arrived in Galveston from Houston.

—A file of the Richmond Examiner, from the commencement of the war to the evacuation of the city, has been sold to a literary institution in Boston for five hundred dollars.

—Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson is very ill. He has been confined to his bed with fever for the last fortnight.

—Major General George Crook has been relieved from command of his cavalry corps and ordered to report to the Adjutant General, by letter, from his place of residence.

—The New York Times says that there is not the color or semblance of truth in the statement that Mr. Stanton or Mr. Seward intend to leave the cabinet.

—Among the prominent and at one time wealthy rebels said to be reduced to poverty by the collapse of Jeff. Davis' confederacy are ex-Governor Letcher, of Virginia, and Colonel, formerly Commissary General.

A correspondent says perfect order now reigns in Richmond. There are a few occasional robberies and fistfights, but as a general thing, no city in the Union of the same size is more orderly than Richmond.

—Specimens of Western oratory are rather stale; but here is a bit, related by a trustworthy authority as authentic, which has not been in print before: "Where is Europe, compared with America? Nowhere. Where is England? Nowhere! They call England the mistress of the sea; but what makes the sea? The Mississippi River makes it. And all we've got to do is to turn the Mississippi into the Mammoth Cave, and the English navy will be floundering in the mud."

Wholesale

LIQUOR STORE.

I am carrying a larger stock than any four Liquor Houses in the Northwest.

I would particularly call the attention of the Wholesale Liquor Dealers of Titusville to my large assortment of Liquors. I can sell to you and save you the transportation from New York to your several places of business for various reasons, viz:

I am not purchasing less than Fifty to Seventy-five Thousand dollars worth at a time, and I am connected with one of the largest houses in New York City, and I am carrying in my house here from one hundred thousand to one hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of stock. I have effected an arrangement with the railroad companies, by loading six or eight cars through I get a percentage off on the freight, so you can readily see that it would be to your interest to call and examine my stock before going east.

TO THE RETAIL

DEALERS.

I offer greater inducement than any other house in this State. I have every thing you want to fit out your bar with and defy any house to compete with me.

My stock consists in parts of

They are connected with the BOILER, either by a bed plate, or by saddles, as may be desired. There are no extras, but included are, PUMP, HEATER, GOVERNOR, SAFETY VALVE, STEAM GAUGE, SUCTION PIPE, SMOKE PIPE, &c. The Piston Rod is of STEEL, the Crank of Wrought Iron and extra heavy.

Every bolt is turned, and hole reamed out. The Pump is attached to the Cylinder, and is so arranged that by a simple adjustment it can be prevented from freezing. The Governor is Pickering's Patent, which gives great uniformity of motion. The Boilers are made of the best PENNSYLVANIA CHARCOAL IRON-SHELL, 1-1 inch, and Fire Box 5-16 inch thick and are subjected to a cold water pressure of 130 pounds before leaving the Works.

They are adapted for burning either coal or wood, dry or green.

The water passes from the HEATER into the BOILER at the heating point.

In estimating CAPACITY, 14 FEET of heating surface per horse power is allowed;

the lava struck one or two large wells in the creek, from Tusville to Oil City, is flooded with water on the third sand rock. I except the wells at Egbert farm, which have always been full sand water, and the old wells, when they did not yield, were taken as seed-bags to produce new wells. The last three months have been the last three months become nearly as low as usual as Oil Creek. When parties owning a number of wells to put down wells on one, and then allow them to stand a new well if they do not yield oil after testing, they are to get the farm flooded, if they are to get the farm flooded, if they are many wells left in this way.

If you get a paying well, have eight thousand dollars on hand when you start, and more if you can. Never calculate on less than that for one well. It is not unusual to get a well that will pay for five thousand, and are not worth more or less. Don't expect to get all sorts of things, but twenty-five feet, and perhaps the wells people talk of yielding at three-
